

The FAI Regional Management Structure

Why a Regional Management Structure?

- The President and Executive Board need to have regional management resources in order to carry out the business of FAI effectively, due to...
 - Increased activities outside central Europe
 - Regional and international FAI presence and representation are insufficient; must be strengthened
 - Slim organization at HO in Lausanne
 - Recruitment and promotion in countries not having FAI affiliated organizations are difficult and mostly reactive

The FAI RMS Guidelines

- Contains
 - General description
 - RVP Duties and Responsibilities
 - RVP Nomination and Appointment
 - Administrative routines for the RVP

FAI Regional Management Structure - Implementation progress -

- The RMS has been implemented in three regions
 - East and South East Asia (E&SEA)
 - South America (SAM)
 - Africa
- Further regions will be added during 2014

Important issues...

- We will require performance of the Regional Management Structure and the RVP
- Yes, it may initially fail in one or more regions
- We will then require correction, see improvement in operations and/or replace the RVP
- NAC support in the region is essential

FAI Regional Management Structure - Conclusion -

- Implementing the Regional Management Structure will...
 - Establish/improve regional and international representation/influence
 - Improve effectiveness of the FAI executive management, by providing increased resources for the Executive Board
 - Improve communication with and service to NACs
 - Facilitate increased membership to FAI

FAI - covering the world

Our regional Structure is just a management tool -
we are ONE international federation - the FAI

Thank you for your attention, and thanks to Malaysia for hosting a superb
