Temperatures are mostly moderated by the South Atlantic. Generally, Buenos Aires has a mild and warm climate throughout the year. The winter months are June, July and August; summer months are December, January and February; spring months are September, October and November; autumn months are March, April and May.

In February, we expect the following temperatures Max 28 °C (82°F) Min 17°C (63°F)

We recommend you that carry light dresses.

E. Food

Argentina does not have an obvious traditional cuisine. This is primarily due to the high influx of immigrants throughout the history of Argentina, all of whom have left their mark on the food eaten in Argentina. Spanish food is the predominant cuisine in Argentina with other food influences including French, German, Italian and English. Interestingly you can also find traditional Welsh food in the Patagonia Chubut Valley which is populated by settlers who arrived from Wales in 1865.

Argentina is a meat loving country and the Argentines eat more meat per head than any other country. The Argentines love their traditional barbeques (al asador) and mixed grills (parillada). In particular, beef is the most popular meat in Argentina and the country is famous for its zealous consumption!

So, although the evolution of vegetarian cuisine still has a way to go in Argentina, carnivores would find themselves in meat heaven.

F. Currency:

The currency used in Argentina is the peso ($). Paper money is available in values of 2, 5, 10, 20, 50 and 100 pesos. One peso equals 100 centavos and coins are available in values of 1, 5, 10, 25 and 50 centavos and one peso.

The following suggestions may help to ensure you protect the value of your money whilst in Argentina

- Bring your own local currency / money and only change it into pesos as needed
- Use an official “cambio” to change your currency where possible as you are likely to get better exchange rates
- Although it is not official currency, US Dollars are commonly accepted in Argentina and it may be worth carrying a portion of dollars with you to supplement your peso funds in the event that you are delayed changing your money at a cambio. You should note however, that some institutions (e.g. bus companies) refuse to accept US currency
- Be careful however, not to run out of pesos if you are not staying in the major cities
- Always ensure that you keep your money in pristine conditions as it is not unusual for tatty money or money which has been defaced / written on, to be refused in Argentina
- As many countries, you should also be careful to check any money when it is handed to you as change as counterfeiting has been a problem in Argentina in recent years. Therefore, ensure that you check your money for the watermark, centre thread and micro-printing.

In BA city, there are an abundance of ATM machines in Argentina, so this is an obvious way of supplying yourself with money whilst in the country. However, it is likely that your bank will make a charge for using this facility so ensure that you know in advance what the charge will be.

Credit cards are widely accepted in Argentina with Visa and Mastercard being the most commonly used, but American Express is accepted too. However, please note that it may be less acceptable to use credit cards outside of the major cities and provincial capitals. Therefore, ensure that you have an alternative form of money if you are travelling outside of these areas.

You may find that a high surcharge is incurred when using your credit cards, so ensure that you check the surcharge prior to pursuing the transaction.

Keep an eye on your credit card prior to it being returned to you for signature and ensure that you are comfortable that an undue period of time has not passed prior to it being handed back to you.

As with credit cards, you may find it difficult to change traveller’s cheques at the weekends or in small towns. If you take travellers cheques with you to Argentina, then it is advisable to ensure that you also have other means of accessing money in the event that you are unable to change them.

G. Immigration matters,

People from certain countries need a valid Argentine entry visa before arriving in the State, whether by air, sea or land. An Argentine visa is a certificate placed on your passport or travel document to indicate that you are authorised to land in the State subject to any other conditions of landing being fulfilled. This means that you will still be subject to immigration control at the point of entry to the State even if you have a visa.

You may also need to register with the immigration authorities. There are exceptions.

N. Entry fee (reciprocity fee)

When entering Argentine Territory, the nationals of the following countries must pay a "reciprocity fee":

Australia: USD 100.00 (single entry)

Canada: USD 70.00 (single entry)

USA: USD 140.00 (multiple entries during 10 years since the date of the first entry)

The Argentine Government set this entry fee on equal amounts to those Argentine citizens must pay when requesting a Visa to travel to those countries.

The fee will be collected only at Buenos Aires Ezeiza International Airport. Once paid, the fee permits multiple entries into Argentina for ten years in accordance with United States Visa reciprocity.

O. Airport

Ezeiza International Airport has three terminals, one being used for cargo and two for passengers. Terminal A is used by all major International carriers flying into and out of Buenos Aires, while terminal B is used almost exclusively by Aerolíneas Argentinas as their hub for both international and domestic flights.

Terminals A and B are within walking. Ezeiza International Airport announced late in 2007 with plans to include a new terminal building, control tower and car parking facilities. Ezeiza International Airport has several restaurants, bars and caf es as well as Duty Free and many other shops located throughout terminal A and B. There are pharmacies in both terminals, and a medical service center in Terminal A.
