PROXIES IN ISC ELECTRONIC MEETINGS

It seems that the ISC, as well as other organisations around the world, are going to have electronic meetings more and more. In the context of an electronic meeting we feel that there is no need for proxies. Although both FAI and ISC allow them in their rules, the new scenario of electronic meetings was not considered when the rules were written.

A proxy was intended for a situation where a NAC cannot send a delegate to a meeting, for whatever reason, but in the current situation of electronic meetings it seems clear that if a NAC has any interest in the affairs dealt with during our meetings they should be able to attend.

For these reasons we request that no proxy is allowed during an electronic meeting.
