Dear Gillian,

As we approach the end of this very special season, I have no doubt that the ISC, like the FAI, is preparing for the next season with a burst of optimism about the future of the competitions.

Ahead of the FAI's General Assembly, the feedback we are getting on its financial health, although notoriously pessimistic, is even more worrying this year. Indeed, it would appear that in the medium term, the FAI could find itself in suspension of payments and, by the same token, close to bankruptcy.

In the event that these facts are proven, as the reading of the balance sheets by NACs such as the British suggests, the question will be very selfishly raised about our future as an entity managing parachuting. If the ultimate goal would be to see the FAI survive a financial crisis, the point nevertheless has to be raised of a future without the FAI.

It goes without saying that the FFP does not want this, but would nevertheless like to see it put on the agenda of the next ISC Plenary Meeting, so that the countries represented can think and work on an alternative plan to deal - if necessary - with the fall of the FAI.

We all need to think together about a "plan B" if there is one, and not wait for an ultimate deadline, or there will be no time to make good decisions.

With my kind regards,

David ROTH
President
